

The Indian Institutes of Management

A guide to India's premier B-schools

HE Indian Institutes of Management are perhaps the most prestigious B-schools in our country. Over the past few decades, the IIMs have regularly been ranked at the top of India's B-school hierarchy, and their alumni have gone on to achieve fame worldwide. In fact, the IIM brand receives acknowledgement and praise virtually anywhere in the world - and not just in the corporate sector. This has not happened by accident. The very nature of the IIMs - as autonomous, independent institutes that provide their students the best facilities, faculty, and curricula - often makes them the first choice for many B-school aspirants. The holistic development that the IIMs promote has seen their alumni not just succeed as managers and CEOs, but also as entrepreneurs, authors, social reformers, and policy gurus.

The first IIMs to be set up were IIM Calcutta and IIM Ahmedabad in 1961. These were followed by IIM Bangalore in 1973 and IIM Lucknow in 1984. Then, in 1996, two new IIMs - at Indore and Kozhikode - were launched. Eventually, realising the unqualified and comprehensive success of the IIM system, the Union Government decided to set up more such institutes that could help provide bright young managers for India's booming economy. In 2007, a new IIM was set up in Shillong, and in 2010, new institutes came up in Rohtak, Ranchi, and Raipur. In 2011, three more - Udaipur, Kashipur, Tiruchirappali - were launched, taking the total number of IIMs to 13. The IIMs are also responsible for the prestigious CAT exam. Perhaps India's most anticipated - and feared - entrance test, the CAT is your gateway to the IIMs and several other B-schools.
